- 1.1

End-of-block review screen is located on its own tab after the last question (#8 in this example). Review screen can be accessed at any time via the next button or by tapping the “Review” tab.
- 1.2

Next button is disabled when sitting on the end-of-block review screen.
- 1.3

Standard tab shading indicates answered/unanswered questions. The review tab is either in the active state or the unanswered state.
- 1.4

This copy would be the same regardless of whether there are unanswered questions.

- 1.5

This copy would be the same regardless of whether there are unanswered questions.
- 1.5

Copy and icon presented here based on what's left to do. If all the questions have been answered, we might display a suggestion that the student use remaining time to go back and check his work.
- 1.7

This copy & the Finished button would only be presented if students are allowed to go on to the next section before time is up. This block is aligned with the bottom of the screen, or underneath the last line of text if the text block (5.0) extends below the fold.
- 1.8

Clicking the Leave Section button displays the following confirmation dialog. Stop-sign is relatively well-established testing convention for end-of-section.

Are you sure?
